Good Morning Steve,

Good news! I emailed the FCC staff individual in charge of EEO audits and plead KCRU's case to them. After a few exchanges yesterday, I received the following note today: Based on the information you have provided about KCRU(FM), Oxnard, CA, licensed to Santa Monica Community College District, there is no need for the station to respond to the June 2017 audit and we will close out the file.

This means there is no further action required for this EEO audit. That said, you should still keep a copy of the FCC's EEO audit targeting KCRU in the station's public file, along with a print out of the attached email correspondence to document that the station was cleared.

Please let me know if you have any questions!

Thanks,

Colin

Colin,

KCRU is licensed as a satellite station of KCRW. It has no studios or employees of its own.

Some years ago we received one of these for an FM translator of ours and our FCC attorney of the time wrote a letter to the FCC pointing out it's a translator with no staff. I would believe this would be handled in a similar manner given its status. Can you help us with this?

I think it would be unproductive to request any information from this station so we can exempt it from the audit. We need to know what station it is before I can exempt it.

It is a NCE satellite repeater with no employees, but it is full power.

Is this station a full-power radio station?

Subject: Second Round of 2017 EEO Audits

Good Afternoon Lew,

On the FCC's second round of EEO audits released last Friday, a client's FM noncommercial satellite repeater station was included among the randomly selected stations. This station has no full time employees, operates under a main studio waiver, and is located in a separate community of license from the originating station. In a situation like this, is a full response to the EEO audit still required?

Thanks for your help!

Colin
